
Title: Yew Times #31

Author: The Yew Scribes

Contents
Farm Reports.....2

Local News.....16

World News....29

Interviews....39

YEW FARM
REPORTS

by Agriculture Expert Bob

With winter soon upon us I visited some of the local famers in Yew to see how they handled
protecting the young cows and sheep during the winter months.
This interesting story was told to me by Yew famer Joe.

Last winter Farmer
Joe revived a calf
that was almost gone!

The calf--we call Junior--nestles in the glow of a warming box
built especially for baby citters. The famers kids brush
Juniors soft hide.
Perfect calving
picture right?

Now go back 24 hours Joe and his family had just returned from the Yew town meeting.

Joe checks his herd a lot. It was November 8th.

"When I found this calf, he was cold--so cold his jaws were clinched and I couldn't get it open." Joe said.

"The temperature was 20[degrees] and the wind was blowing 30 to 40 miles per hour."

In just the 3 1/2 hours since the calf was born outside, he was struggling.

"It was getting stiff, where the legs stick out and the neck arches back." says Joe.

"You know when your close to losing a calf to hypothermia."

"I raced into the lot, picked up the calf, ran inside and got it in front of Big Bertha to get some chill off. Then I put the calf in the warming box. [Big Bertha is what I call my fire place that serves as a barn wamer, cattle drier and calf warmer]

Steps to survival

The heater and warming box are step one.

Step Two is to warm Junior up from the inside. To do this Joe uses a Re-sorb, warm milk and honey. The dose is given orally.

Milk out the cow. With Junior warming on the outside and the inside, Joe starts step three. "I get the cow in and milk her out. I dump it into the calf to make sure it has colostrum."

Junior stays in the warming box for two more hours. By then he is ready to go into the pen with mamma.

LOCAL NEWS

By; Lord Slayer

Last Tuesday of this week it was reported that the Blackwind
Nights invaded Yew.
The Knights had hired a band of Mercs. to help them to try to invaded lands in Yew. Yew Militia and The Frim met the evil
Knights and swords were drawn as the battle began. Lord
Dunedain and Lord
Grimrick joined forces with the help of The Empire. After many hours of fighting the Blackwind knights
stood as the winners of the battle. Yet it was not finished there. Adin was slain by Adam, a knight
under The Firm flag.
A special sword was used that had some unusual powers in that when Duke Adin was reborn he was denouncing all that was evil. A civil war
then broke out amongts the Blackwinds. Duke
Adin drew swords against his own mother in an attempt to gain control back over The Blackwind House. Last this

reporter knew the now good Duke Adin was to visit the town meeting this comming Sunday to make an announcement.
This reporter will diffently be there.

Baron Malicite sent a scroll to the Township requesting an audience with the leaders of Yew. The Baron recently took positon of Nujel'm.
The scroll did not give any details as to what he would like to meet about.

Caina Embargo

Also in the local news
Anna of The Frim
and Co-Sage of Sacrifice placed a embargo against Caina
for the slave trading that goes on there.
The embargo is on wares the city sells.
Anna informed all of The Firm that no one was to buy or trade any wares with any citizens of Caina.
Mayor Thorin also joined the embargo and made the same laws
apply to all Yew Citizens.

WORLD NEWS

KIDNAPPING!!!!!!

BY Sage Fred

This reporter visited the Kindom of Stormhaven just in time to hear Prince Talon's announce 'The Prince is Home!'"
The Prince went on to say that Smogg
has a good thrashing comming his way for all the harm Smogg
has caused his guild while he was gone.

Way to go Prince
Talon!
During the Prince's
homecomming party, Dryzzid of OES from Caina kidnapped the Queen. Everyone in Stromhaven is....ticked!

HONESTY
BLOCKED OFF???

In what seemed to be a bold statment by Wintermoor, a blockade was built in the passageway
between Wintermoor
and the MTC Palace
on Ice Island.

[you see a picture of the shrine of honest and the blockade] Wintermoore is claiming rights to the shrine yet seems MTC may have the last laugh. In a act of compassion for the shrine of Honesty,
Mayor of Moonglow, GreyPawn gave the deed to the shrine to the Regent. So if all is correct it would seem that Wintermoor was actually blocking off a shrine the Regent owned. I am sure there will be more to come on this matter.

People In the News

by: Yew Times

I thought it only fitting that the first person this paper was to interview was our